FROM THE DIRECTOR

I am happy to report that the Library’s budget will be increased $150,000 for 2005-2006 to cover the annual cost increase for the current journal and database subscriptions, and to add a few new subscriptions for journals which have been heavily requested on interlibrary loan. The Library also recently received $26,000 from the Arkansas Biosciences Institute, which was used to pay for improved online access to the New England Journal of Medicine for all UA campuses, a portion of the Cell Press online journals, and the online backfiles of the Wiley neurosciences journals.

The National Library of Medicine (NLM) is currently involved in a massive project to digitize major journal backfiles not yet available electronically. The articles will be made available through PubMed Central, which is NLM's free online repository of journal articles. Libraries throughout the country have been asked to provide needed print backfiles, and the UAMS Library has provided printed backfiles for two journal titles totaling about 75 volumes. We are happy to be a part of this project which will make older journals more readily available.

UAMS Library Director
EXPERT SEARCHING

The following article describes an unfortunate clinical case illustrating the importance of a thorough biomedical literature search. The medical librarian community, including the UAMS Library, is dedicated to educating researchers about the skills required to perform a comprehensive search.

The UAMS Library provides individualized research consultations and curriculum-based educational training for students, faculty and staff in the use of literature databases, evidence-based medicine resources, and more. The Library also provides free biomedical literature searches for the UAMS faculty by expert searchers. These services are especially encouraged for those involved in research with human subjects. The Library also currently has a librarian serving on the Institutional Animal Care and Use Committee (IACUC) to assist researchers with the animal alternatives search required in the Animal Use Protocol. To take advantage of these free search services, fill out the following form (https://www.library.uams.edu/forms/cars.asp) or contact the UAMS Reference Department at 686-6734 or e-mail (libraryreferencedesk@uams.edu).

Responsible Literature Searching for Research
Submitted by Charles B. Wessel, Falk Library of the Health Sciences, Health Sciences Library System, University of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh, PA

This quarterly column features timely topics relevant to expert database searching by librarians. Please forward submissions for this column to Terry Ann Jankowski, AHIP.

The unanticipated death of a healthy research study volunteer at a major university highlights the importance of a comprehensive and exhaustive literature search in the conduct of responsible research [1]. When this tragic event was investigated, it became evident that many researchers who perform literature searches have little guidance about what constitutes an appropriate or sufficient search to protect and support human subject research.

In 2003, the Health Sciences Library System (HSLS) at the University of Pittsburgh (Pitt) began developing “Responsible Literature Searching for Research: A Self-Paced Interactive Educational Program” to address this need. The program’s objectives were to describe and teach generally accepted practices and principles associated with the biomedical literature search process and emphasize the HSLS resources and services available to support this process.

This self-instructional program is available through the Pitt’s Education and Certification Program in Research and Practice Fundamentals Website. Completing the module is highly recommended for individuals involved in research with human subjects at Pitt. It provides clinical researchers with knowledge of how to locate literature to facilitate the design of scientifically sound research studies and to protect human subjects from harm. Anyone can view the module without a password, but an account is required to access or complete the quizzes or tests.

In November 2004, the program was introduced at a meeting of the American Association of Medical Colleges. The attendees who viewed the module suggested a variety of populations who would benefit from completing this program, including medical students, residents in programs with research components, and nursing students in distance education programs. Because the module is based on principles applicable in most research-oriented settings, HSLS will make the content available to other academic health sciences libraries and medical centers for adapting to their local settings and resources.

In addition to the author of this article, a number of individuals contributed to the development and review of the module including Laura Abate, Linda J. Collins, AHIP, Janis Glover, AHIP, Kathy J. Davis, Geraldine Wanserski, and several HSLS librarians: Rebecca Abromitis, June Bandemer, AHIP, Renae Barger, Jaime Friel Blanck, Michelle Burda, Barbara Epstein, AHIP, Michele Klein Fedyshin, AHIP, Barbara Folb, Jill Foust, Amy Gregg, Linda Hartman, Andrea Ketchum, Mary Lou Klem, Alice Kuller, Ammon Ripple, Ester Saghafi, Nancy Tannery, and Patricia Weiss.

For more information about the program, contact Charles B. Wessel or 412.648.8730.

LIBRARY STAFF PARTICIPATE IN PAWS ON THE PAVEMENT 5K WALK/RUN

Six staff members of UAMS Library met early on Saturday morning, May 21, at Murray Park on the banks of the beautiful Arkansas River to participate in the annual Paws on the Pavement 5K walk/run. The race is held in support of the Central Arkansas Rescue Effort for Animals (CARE), and was followed by a 1K fun walk for people and their pets.

Participants from the library were Cindy Caton, Schemeka Herron, Abby Holt, Sharon Keel, Sheila Peters and Belinda Rocco. Abby and Belinda participated in the Little Rock Marathon earlier this year as members of the library relay team, but this was a first-time race for the others. Each participant reached her goal of finishing the race and had great fun cheering others across the finish line!

After the race, Schemeka said, “I really enjoyed the race, and I look forward to doing it again soon. Oh, seeing all of the gorgeous dogs made it even nicer and the weather was so pleasant. I had lots of fun!” Cindy commented, “I survived. Thank you all for cheering me on to the finish line. I’m proud of all of us and can’t wait until next year!” All participants are already making plans to form a UAMS Library team for the 5K Race for the Cure in September. These ladies are taking the “Get Healthy UAMS” campaign seriously!

LIBRARY PURCHASES MEMBERSHIP FOR NUCLEIC ACIDS RESEARCH

Oxford University Press is now providing free online access to its flagship journal Nucleic Acids Research. It is a rarity for a journal of such importance to be completely free to all users immediately upon publication. Beginning in 2005 the journal will be funded by memberships and author fees instead of the traditional subscription model. To support this effort toward Open Access and to defray our faculty authors’ expenses, the Library has recently purchased an institutional membership to NAR for UAMS. This membership will entitle our faculty whose articles are accepted for publication in Nucleic Acids Research a reduced author fee of $500. Authors from non-member institutions will be charged $1500. (This charge applies to articles up to 9 pages in length. Each page above 9 will be an additional $50 per page). This experiment in Open Access will be closely watched by both publishers and libraries to gauge the success of this method of paying for “free” online journals. If you have comments or questions, please contact Mary Hawks (hawksmarys@uams.edu).
OUTREACH NEWS
Spotlight: AHEC Library – Fort Smith

This column continues the spotlight on Arkansas’ Area Health Education Center (AHEC) libraries that have a long tradition of providing services to AHEC faculty, staff and students. They also provide tremendous support to the surrounding medical community by providing library services to health professionals in their region.

In the sixth part of this series we place the spotlight on the AHEC Library in Fort Smith run by Grace Anderson.

History:

The AHEC Library in Fort Smith is unique in several areas. In the early 1970’s several interested physicians had convinced a supportive administrator, Marvin Altman, of the need for a medical library in the hospital. With the help of Sally Kasalko, a reference librarian at the UAMS Library, these individuals obtained in 1971 a grant from THE LIBRARY ASSISTANCE ACT supported by the National Library of Medicine.

The Library opened in its present location in June 1972. Thus, this Sparks Regional Health Sciences Library was an entity giving service when the AHEC Program began in Fort Smith in 1975. The local Sebastian County Medical Society had designated this as their official library and continues to provide some support from their annual membership dues. Also, this Library was among the first in community hospitals to gain MEDLINE access, which had been limited to academic centers. Until recently, the Library had a most unique item, a flight simulator. Several physicians and the administrator who were avid pilots had purchased this simulator in the early 1970’s. They accrued flying time through use of this flight device and the audiotapes that came with it. They had a logbook to log flight time and checked out the simulator key through the librarian. It now resides happily in the Fort Smith Air Museum.

Librarian:

Grace Anderson became the AHEC Fort Smith Library Director in September 1976.

- Hobbies: Shopping, Collecting Cookbooks and Angels, Enjoying family times, Reading

- Favorite part of the job: Networking with other medical librarians and the challenge of solving the “impossible request”

- Professional Memberships:
  - Medical Library Association
  - Hospital Librarians’ Interest Section/Medical Library Association
  - South Central Chapter/Medical Library Association
  - Hospital Librarians’ Section/South Central Chapter/Medical Library Association

- What has been your strangest request?
  The mother of a child working on a school assignment wanted to know, “Is it possible for the human body to ever internally combust?” I referred her to an Internet site, which discusses hoaxes that answered that very question. Or the phone call, “Can you give me contact information for the Embassy of Ghana? I have a patient who needs assistance with his medical expenses.”

Patron Quotes:

“IT is a wonderful asset to have a skillful reference librarian, like Grace Anderson, available to help with lit searches for grant preparation and other scholarly work! Grace is so prompt in providing search results for the latest clinical investigations & information relative to “research-based practice.” Additionally, she will show you how to access information on your own! Grace seems to always be accessible to help in locating materials within the library holdings. She consistently maintains a pleasant manner & goes about her tasks with remarkable “grace!” THANKS”

B.J. Landis, Ph.D., ANP

An article entitled Dr. Cyberspace: Patients Turn to the Internet concluded with a nice tribute to the AHEC Library.

“Finally those who live in the vicinity of Fort Smith have an excellent resource concerning Internet health information at the AHEC Medical Library at Sparks. Medical Librarian Grace Anderson has been locating medical information for physicians and other health-care personnel for years using both the Internet and a variety of other sources. She is an invaluable guide to reputable sources and is also part of an organization of medical librarians who network on Internet health information. Some of the sources she recommends, not only for health topics but for other useful sites as well are posted on the Sparks website (www.Sparks.org) under “Medical Library.”

Groups Served:

AHEC Faculty/Staff, Residents, UAMS Students
Sparks Health System Staff.
Nursing Students from UAFA, UCA, ATU, and Indian Capital Technical Center in Sallisaw, Oklahoma.
Miscellaneous Allied health Students
Consumers from the Community
High School Students research health topics
Patients/Family Members

Services Provided:

Mediated searches for health professionals and others
Interlibrary Loans
Document Delivery
References Services for anyone
Loansome Doc for health professionals
JCAHO Resource for a local facility
Database Training & Library Orientation

Technology:

UAMS Library Staff provide training and support for changing technologies. AHEC Librarians are included in numerous UAMS licensing agreements for databases and other electronic resources which adds value to services in AHEC Libraries. In addition, Sparks Health System provides Micromedex and Up-to-Date on its Intranet. Access is available in the Library. AHEC provides subscription to MDConsult, which is available in the Library. This Library also gained use of Ariel in the past year, which enhances the ability to initiate and receive article requests with short turn around. The Innovative Innopac Online Catalog System including the Millennium Circulation Module is used by all the AHEC libraries.

Medical Collection:

This AHEC Library has 1200 books and 125 journal titles. Many of those journals date back to the middle 1900’s. The Library has 5 computers.

Special Collections:

The Library has consumer health books and access to The National Library of Medicine’s MedlinePlus via the web available for the general public.

[Back to the top]
Interlibrary Loan statistics over the last few years have indicated a need for the American Psychological Association’s journals. In addition, during the last 2 periods of journal cuts the Library cancelled several of the American Psychological Association journals because these print-only journals were not heavily used. Several faculty members objected to these cuts, but the Library could not afford, at that time, to buy APA’s PsycARTICLES that would provide online access. Now, thanks to Dr. Wilson’s increase in the Library’s budget, the UAMS Library has purchased PsycARTICLES, a full text database of all 44 journals published by the American Psychological Association and 8 journals from allied organizations.

We anticipate that having online full text access to these journals will widen and increase their use by faculty and students alike and decrease the need for interlibrary loans.

The following are some of the journals included in PsycARTICLES.
- Developmental Psychology
- Health Psychology
- Journal of Applied Psychology
- Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology
- Journal of Educational Psychology
- Neuropsychology
- Professional Psychology
- Psychological Assessment
- Psychological Bulletin
- Psychological Methods
- Psychology and Aging
- Psychology of Addictive Behavior

Click here for the full list of PsycARTICLES journals. http://www.apa.org/psycarticles/covlist.html Online coverage for many of the journals begins with 1985 and is provided on our EBSCO platform.

When searching databases such as PsycINFO or PubMed, citations to these journals will link to the full-text articles provided in PsycARTICLES. Access to these journals is also available on the Library’s eJournals page http://www.library.uams.edu/resources/journals.aspx.
