FROM THE LIBRARY DIRECTOR
PubMed To Replace Ovid MEDLINE in June of 2006

For several years UAMS librarians, along with other librarians throughout the country, have been monitoring the development of the PubMed database (which includes MEDLINE) provided for free by the National Library of Medicine (NIH). During the past year, UAMS reference librarians did an in-depth comparison of PubMed and the Ovid MEDLINE product to which the Library currently subscribes. After studying the features of both systems that seem most important to our users, we considered PubMed to be the better option for UAMS for several major reasons. Therefore, we are planning to cancel the Ovid MEDLINE subscription effective July 1, 2006, giving Ovid MEDLINE users nearly a year for the transition to PubMed.

Some of the reasons we selected PubMed over Ovid MEDLINE are as follows:

Open Accessibility and Life-Long Learning

PubMed is a free resource from the National Library of Medicine that will continue to be available via the Internet to faculty, students, and staff even after they leave UAMS. In the spirit of life-long learning, students and faculty will be acquiring the skills needed to search a database that will be available wherever they practice their health sciences profession.

Ovid Costs and Restrictions

Ovid is a privately-owned system that requires re-negotiations every year as prices continue to climb. Ovid limits the number of concurrent users of the Ovid databases and full-text journals based on what a library is able to afford, thus creating times when popular databases or materials are not accessible. Ovid access is also restricted by license to UAMS faculty, students, and staff only. This has been a troublesome issue at UAMS since access is usually denied to our alumni, emeritus faculty, adjunct faculty, volunteers, and others who do not strictly fall under our license. This problem is exacerbated by the erroneous belief that Ovid is the only option for accessing full-text journals.

Full-Text Journal Articles

In the past the Library purchased full-text journals via Ovid, but this is no longer the case. The vast majority of full-text journals are now licensed directly through publishers providing immediate access to current online articles, usually without restrictions on concurrent users. Full-text articles are equally available through PubMed and Ovid. Also, the ejournal list on the Library Website provides access to virtually all of the Library's full-text journals by journal title or citation.

Quicker Access and Broader Coverage

PubMed and Ovid (and all other MEDLINE vendors) provide access to records that are indexed and compiled by the National Library of Medicine. However, records are more quickly available in PubMed, including In-Process records searchable by words in the citation and abstract before the full indexing is completed. PubMed also provides a broader coverage than MEDLINE, including Non-Indexed Citations for articles judged to be of importance to health and life sciences that appear in journals not routinely indexed in MEDLINE.

Although access to Ovid MEDLINE will end in June 2006, access to other Ovid databases, including HAPI, IPA, and Cochrane Evidence-Based Medicine files, will continue to be available through Ovid for the foreseeable future.

Beginning immediately, the Library staff will teach PubMed searching skills instead of Ovid in classes offered both on and off campus. The Reference librarians are ready to assist Ovid users in the transition to PubMed individually, in small groups, or in larger settings. Please contact the Library Reference Desk at libraryreferencedesk@uams.edu or 686-6734 to obtain PubMed training or assistance.

Mary L. Ryan,
ANNOUNCING A NEW CATALOG DESIGN

The UAMS Library's online catalog has undergone an extreme makeover and is sporting a new look and improved features. We will be highlighting the more powerful features in future issues. For now, we would like to introduce a greatly improved design and layout.

For assistance with the catalog, please call the Reference Desk at 686-6734 or e-mail LibraryReferenceDesk@uams.edu.
NEW ONLINE RESOURCES

The Library has recently added these online resources:

PsychiatryOnline

Keep up-to-date with this collection of e-books, online journals, and self-assessment tools from American Psychiatric Publishing, Inc. Resources include:

- DSM-IV-TR®
- The American Journal of Psychiatry & four other peer-reviewed journals in psychiatry
- DSM-IV-TR® Casebook and Its Treatment Companion
- DSM-IV-TR® Handbook of Differential Diagnosis
- APA Practice Guidelines in both comprehensive and quick-reference formats
- The American Psychiatric Publishing Textbook of Clinical Psychiatry, with an interactive study guide

Users can search across all these resources at once. Based on sophisticated indexing custom-designed for the field of psychiatry, searches are likely to yield relevant results. Links from bibliographic references lead to the full text of journal articles in the five journals included in PsychiatryOnline or to abstracts via PubMed. New APA Practice Guidelines plus revisions to DSM codes are posted as they are issued. Take a quick tour of PsychiatryOnline.com (flash demo) - available for viewing at http://www.psychiatryonline.com/about.aspx.

Mental Measurements Yearbook (one concurrent user license) (EBSCO database)

Produced by the Buros Institute at the University of Nebraska, the Mental Measurements Yearbook provides users with a comprehensive guide to over 2,000 contemporary testing instruments. The MMY series contains information essential for a complete evaluation of test products within such diverse areas as psychology, education, business, and leadership. Typical MMY test entries include descriptive information and one or two reviews written by professionals in selected fields. The instruments themselves are not present in the MMY but publisher contact information and price data are provided. This version of MMY provides coverage from Volume 9, 1985 to the present.

Access Medicine (five concurrent user license)

In addition Access Medicine provides patient education information, up-to-date drug information from Clinical Pharmacology, and self-assessment and other online learning tools to help study for the boards, prepare for recertification or increase general knowledge. Access Medicine is updated daily.

Chronicle of Higher Education

The online version of the Chronicle. This daily newspaper is especially popular for its job listings and analysis of issues affecting education. Our UAMS subscription covers 1995 to present.

For questions or comments, please contact Mary Hawks, Collection Management Librarian, hawksmarys@uams.edu.
OUTREACH NEWS
UAMS LIBRARIANS EXHIBIT AT NATIONAL CONVENTION

Recently the UAMS Library had a wonderful opportunity to represent the National Library of Medicine at the 76th National LULAC Convention held in Little Rock, June 29 – July 1, 2005. The League of United Latin American Citizens annual convention is a huge meeting with approximately 10,000 individuals attending. Commercial exhibitors shared the large exhibit hall with a health fair, a college fair and job expo. In addition to many educational and learning opportunities, the exhibit hall was the location of many live performances by dancers and singers.

The keynote speaker for this year’s meeting was President Bill Clinton. Other featured speakers included Robert Salazar, Food & Nutrition Service Administrator with the US Department of Agriculture; Anna Cabral, U.S. Treasurer; Gloria Estefan, internationally acclaimed artist; and Governor Mike Huckabee.

The meeting provided a great venue to promote free consumer health and medical resources available to the public from the National Library of Medicine (NLM). Many of NLM’s materials are available full-text in Spanish. These included MedlinePlus (disease & conditions, drug information, and interactive tutorials), ToxTown for information on toxic chemical and environmental health risks you might encounter in everyday life, plus other NLM resources such as Household Products Database, the Genetic Home Reference, etc.

Below are photos of the UAMS Reference Librarians exhibiting at LULAC.

NEW COMPUTERS – NEW OPPORTUNITIES

The Library recently replaced twelve computers located on the first floor with new PCs that are faster and easier to use. Replacement of library computers is done on a rotation basis each year in an attempt to provide the newest and best technology for our users. The new PCs have faster processors allowing programs to open and load with less wait time.

The new PCs also have read/writeable DVD and CD technology. Now you can store at least 600 times more information on a CD than a floppy disk. Based on the antiquated technology of floppy disks and the fact that many new PCs today do not come with floppy drives, the Library will be phasing out the use of floppies and floppy drives over the next three years. The Reference staff has added a sign to each new PC indicating that it does not have a floppy drive available.

The new PCs also come with new digital flat screen monitors. These monitors take up less desk space and are clearer and sharper than old flat screens. The monitors also have a USB port on the left hand side of the screen. This allows easy access for thumb drives.

The Library does not sell thumb drives or floppy disks, but CD’s are sold at the circulation desk.

For further information, contact Chuck Byrne, Systems Analyst, ByrneCharlesA@uams.edu

UAMS LIBRARY WIRELESS ACCESS TIPS

- America Online (AOL) and Netscape are not compatible with the UAMS wireless network.
- Mozilla and Firefox users will need to logon using Internet Explorer but can then switch back to those browsers once the connection is established.
- The UAMS IT Support Desk (686-8555) may be able to help with wireless laptop configuration issues.
EDD (ELECTRONIC DOCUMENT DELIVERY): A NEW WAY TO OBTAIN COPIES OF ARTICLES FROM PRINT JOURNALS IN THE UAMS LIBRARY COLLECTION

The Library is now offering document delivery services for materials that are available within the library collection. UAMS faculty, staff and students may request electronic delivery of print journal articles through ILLiad. Select the button "REQUEST eDD Documents" and submit the citation information for an article. A separate electronic form must be submitted for each article needed. A scanned copy of the article will be delivered via e-mail.

The cost for this service is $0.10 per page plus a $1.00 service charge per article. Payment methods are by invoice, departmental accounts (IDTs) or by cash. This service is available to UAMS faculty, staff and students only and does not include articles available through e-journals.

For more information about the service call Libby Ingram in the Circulation Department at 686-6741.

Do you need a copy of a journal article available only in print, but don’t have time to come to the Library to make the copy?

Try eDD!

It could be just the service for you.

See http://www.library.uams.edu/illiad/eDDinfo.htm for more information.
HISTORY OF UAMS DISPLAY CENTER OFFICIALLY OPENED

The Library’s Historical Research Center and its History of Medicine Associates are heavily involved in the continuing operation of the new History of UAMS Display Center on the first floor of the hospital, across from the College of Medicine offices.

On Wednesday, August 3rd, the dedication of the Display Center was celebrated with a ribbon cutting and reception. Amanda Saar, Chair of the Historical Research Center as well as Treasurer of the History of Medicine Associates; Sharon Keel, Reference Assistant, and Jonathan Wolfe, PhD, College of Pharmacy were all actively involved in seeing that the festivities went as planned.

Those speaking included E. Albert Reece, MD, PhD, MBA, Dean of the College of Medicine; I. Dodd Wilson, MD, Chancellor; John Shock, MD, Executive Vice Chancellor; Jonathan Wolfe, PhD, College of Pharmacy and Curator of the Display Center, and Richard Clark, MD, President of the History of Medicine Associates. Dr. Clark cut the ribbon, and the Display Center is now officially open. About fifty people attended, many of them faculty as well as members of the History of Medicine Associates.

This display area was created in order to continue the representation of the history of UAMS that began with the exhibit at the Old State House: "Medical Education at the Old State House 1912-1935, From Flexner to the New Deal." That exhibit ran from October of 2001 to September of 2002. After its closing, the absence of a continuing display for the history of UAMS was felt, and the idea of the History of UAMS Display was created.

The construction was funded by Dr. Reece and Dr. Wilson, and the continuing upkeep of the Display Center will be supported by the History of Medicine Associates. The items displayed will change from time to time and represent all of UAMS. If there are aspects of the history of the campus that you would like to see presented, let us know. In addition, the next time you are on campus, stop by and admire it!

To view photos from the dedication, please link to the UAMS web site: http://www.uams.edu/update/absolutenm/templates/news2003v2.asp?articleid=3722&zoneid=27
