2014 Lecture in the History of the Health Sciences:
A Narrative History of Health and Disease in Arkansas

Sam Taggart, M.D.
In celebration of National Public Health Week, Sam Taggart, M.D. will speak on the history of public health in Arkansas. Dr. Taggart, a 1973 graduate of the University of Arkansas, School of Medicine, is a retired Family Practice physician from Benton, Arkansas. A founder and former member of Family Practice Associates, he also served as the Public Health Physician for Saline County for almost twenty years. As a writer, he has published two novels, two plays, and writes a monthly column for Saline Lifestyles. His book, The Public’s Health: A Narrative History of Health and Disease in Arkansas, was published by the Arkansas Times in December 2013.

Monday, April 7, 2014
Noon - 1:00 p.m.

Fay W. Boozman College of Public Health,
8th Floor Auditorium, Room 8240

Sponsored by:

[Logos of UAMS Library, Fay W. Boozman College of Public Health, Society for the History of Medicine and the Health Professions]